POSTOFFICE PLUM ATTRACTING ATTENTION AT MONONGAHELA

Deserving Democrats Slightly Flustered Over Matter of Appointment

ONE MAN ON JOB ALREADY

W. S. Shepler Circulates His Petition, and Will Immediately File it —Others Considering Casting Their Hats Into the Ring.

Deserving Democratic patriots, or those who think themselves deserving, are becoming considerably flustered at Monongahela over the appointment within the next few months of a postmaster to succeed Postmaster D. C. Parkinson. Already one man has made his formal announcement as a candidate for the job and others have an eagle eye on the situation and a trusty ear to the ground.

W. S. Shepler has already circulated his petition. His success in securing names was immense and he had the advantage of being the first canvasser. It will be forwarded immediately through "intermediate headquarters," and will eventually reach A. Mitchell Palmer, distributer of Democratic patronage in the Keystone state and from there will go into the hands of Postmaster General Burleson and eventually to President Wilson if it is favored by the intermediaries.

Others who are mentioned as postoffice possibilities at Monongahela are Hon. Cornelius Carson, a former assemblyman, John B. O'Ehrl and Thomas Anderson. What arrangements they have made to get their names before the high and mighty is not known. However, their campaign is not really under way. So far Mr. Shepler is considered to have the inside track, but there is no statement being made as to how he stands with the county committee, and it is a fact that has been proven that a man has to be in the good graces of the ruling Democrats of the county to get "in right" with those who have the final say.

HEAVY SENTENCES ARE IMPOSED FOR MURDER

Second Degree Verdicts Bring Long Prison Terms—Kolbos and Markovich Sent to Penitentiary, Making Total of Five in Brief Time

From 16 to 20 years in the Western Penitentiarry was the indeterminate sentence imposed by Judge Irwin on Fred Kolbos, convicted on last Thursday evening of murder in the second degree. The defendant had been indicted as one of the men who entered the home of M. Cohen at Marianna, May 16, 1915 for the purpose of robbery. It was during a struggle with his assailants that M. Cohen was shot and killed and a son severely wounded by a bullet from one of the guns of the intruders.

Costa Markovich, found guilty of second degree murder, was sentenced by Judge McIlvaine to an indeterminate term in the Western Penitentiary, the maximum being 20 years and the minimum 12 years. Markovich at a christening at Cokeburg on August 1, 1915 shot and killed Milan Marunich.

Attorney Howard Hughes, who was counsel for young Kolbos, made a plea on behalf of the defendant, reciting the fact that the verdict of the jury, in consideration of the fact that first degree had been asked by the commonwealth, seemed to indicate they wished to temper justice with mercy. He further referred to the fact that Kolbos had, prior to this trouble, borne a good reputation about Marianna.

Judge Irwin in passing sentence, said it was not a case where the defendant could be committed to Huntingdon. The court stated further that it was manifest that the defendant was not telling the truth on the witness stand and there was a chain of circumstances in the case that seem to implicate him in the killing of Mr. Cohen. The court said it believed he was one of the men who entered the home of Mr. Cohen that night and as he told the jury if the men entered that home for the purpose of robbery then the defendant was guilty, under the law of murder in the first degree. The jury, however, said the court had been merciful and saved the defendant's life. The court said it believed the defendant was a criminal and with his companions deliberately planned the murder.

On behalf of Markovich, Attorney Lloyd Hart made a plea referring to the testimony offered by the defense that Markovich had shot in self defense. He also referred to the feeling that had previously existed between the man who was killed his brother and the defendant, and that there had been a conspiracy between the brother of the deceased and others to "get" Markovich. Judge McIlvaine took the view that the defendant went to the christening armed, went there anticipating trouble and prepared to fight it out if necessary. The court said further that if the defendant had not been armed it would not have been so bad.

The sentence of these two makes a total of five committed to the penitentiary for murder. Joseph Auria, convicted of the killing of Frank Ragusa, at Houston was given from 12 to 20 years. Mike Sherine and Pete Domijaniu, who entered a plea of guilty to the charge of killing Mitro Frilitka at Hills Station were given from 7 to 12 years in the penitentiary.

ASKS DAMAGES IN HUSBAND'S DEATH

Mrs. Marini States Louis Marini Was Killed When Wall Caved In

CLAIMS IT WAS NOT BRACED

Alberta Marini has filed a suit against Charleroi Lumber company of Charleroi in which she asks $50,000 damages by reason of the death of her husband, Louis Marini, who was killed while employed by the defendant company. The action is brought in behalf of herself and four children.

The accident, in which her husband was fatally hurt, occurred on October 7, 1915 while Louis Marini was employed as a workman on an addition being built to the Hussey-Binns Shovel company's plant at Charleroi. Excavation for the foundation was being made at the time. The work was being carried on along a wall that had previously been erected.

The claim is that the defendant company failed to provide a safe place for her husband to work that it failed to properly brace this wall, alongside which excavations were being made. As a result it is set out this wall caved in. The husband of the plaintiff was buried beneath the debris and received injuries that caused his death.

ITALIAN RESERVISTS CALLED FROM WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

Between 500 and 600 Leave From Fayette County For Scene of War

FEW FROM UPPER VALLEY

Result of Call Not Noticed Here So Much—General Summons Expected To Attract Attention—Army to Be Sent to Greece.

Between 500 and 600 Italians reservists will leave Fayette county next Saturday for Pittsburg where they will take a special train for New York to set sail on the following Monday for their native land in summons from their country's call. The remaining 1,000 or 1,500 reservists of the county will be classed as deserters and will never be allowed to visit their country again.

The Italian government notified the Italian consul at Pittsburg a week ago and the Uniontown representative, H. Fusarini was acordingly notified of the summons. Since receiving the call the Italians of the county have been especially busy arranging matters before their return home. The call is sent to all Italians whether reservists or regulars, physically abled or disabled.

The call is to furnish 250,000 soldiers for the army which the Italian government will send to Greece. While it has not been officially announced it is generally conceded that the Italian government will declare war on Germany in the near future.

So far not many have left from the upper Monongahela valley for Italy. A more general call may result in a greater number hastening away to join the colors.

ONE FATALLY HURT IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Bratton aged 46 of Uniontown, is in a critical condition at Uniontown as the result of an automobile accident Monday evening on the National pike a few miles from Uniontown. The automobile was traveling at a fair speed when, according to Bratton the steering wheel failed to respond throwing the car to the roadside.

THE WEAKEST LINK.

Do you know which is the weakest link in your chain of life? Is it heart, lungs, digestion or nerves? Which of the various organs and functions of the body seems to threaten trouble?

The chances are that unless you have a thorough physical examination you could not tell, for symptoms are misleading and oftentimes their manifestation is general or sympathetically indicates the trouble is located in some other organ than the one which is the actual seat of the trouble, says the state health commissioner.

If there is a knock in the engine of your automobile you are the first to desire an over-hauling to rectify the trouble. You know if a mechanical defect of this sort continues it is going to multiply the trouble before long and that is just what happens with the human mechanism

It is well known by the medical profession that those suffering from organic complaints may often, through vigorous adherence to certain rational methods of living, recover sufficiently to live long and useful lives while those suffering from functional disorders may, by following out the instructions of able medical men, entirely recover their health.

Everyone suffering with a persistent cold, headache or pains, should consult a good physician and submit themselves to a thorough physical examination. It would be well for every one to be examined once a year. This should include an examination of the blood-vessels, blood, heart, lungs, kidneys, a consideration of weight in regard to height and the general activities of the various organs.

Such an examination superficially made if of no value. It should be thorough and the daily routine and habits of the individual carefully considered in relation to his physical condition.

Men ordinarily are obliged to submit to a medical examination now and then when they take out life insurance. Women are not so often insured and hence under ordinary circumstances are more apt to neglect physical examination. It is equally essential to both.

CHARITY AND CONTROL.

Probably never will people escape the demands of persistent collectors of funds for humanitarian and charitable objects and probably never will they try very hard to. But there is an opportunity for reform under the government that they might think about.

If there was a graded and complete system for carrying on all humanitarian and charitable objects under one head those who count pennies would realize the benefit. If the government carried on all such work under a special department with funds provided by direct taxation, and not by individual contribution, it would be one of the best schemes for economy that could be adopted.

Eliminating the waste is what any corporation is trying to do, and this plan would be for the same purpose. There is too much waste in selling papers or holding oyster suppers to aid charity or in selling stamps for any other fund. The objects are worthy, but the present system of conduct is wasteful—wasteful with the people's money. Governmental control with direct taxation is about the only method we could adopt to [illegible] the waste and prodigious [illegible] would [illegible] something worth [illegible] consideration.

There is no danger of the people of the United States going hungry or suffering for a crust, but all over there is much danger. This should cause us specially to [illegible] at this time. That we are [illegible] we can afford to be devoutly grateful that we are not engaged in any war with any nation, shuddering to consider how narrowly we escaped and we cannot help but feel thankful that we are comfortably prosperous. But with all these things to be generally thankful for, we ought with generous spirit to remember those who are suffering and be thankful that we are able to sympathize with and help them.

Even by executing every tenth soldier in the Indian regiments, the British officials could not induce the Indian soldiers to march against Bagdag, owing to their holy Images being there. How grand if some of the civilized nations would display such love for their religion.

Probably some very hearty words of thanks will be sounded this Thanksgiving by munition millionaires at the conditions the war abroad has produced. Still it would sound very much like thanking the Lord for what Sherman said war was.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The teacher in a public school was giving a talk on mythology when she suddnly paused and fixed a piercing eye on little Willie Jones.

"Willie," she declared with large emphasis, "you are not listening to a thing that I am saying."

"Yes, I am, Miss Mary," stautly defended Willie. "I heard every word of it."

"All right, then," returned the teacher. "If you were listening, tell me who Cyclops was."

"Yes, ma'am," was the prompt rejoinder of Willie. "Cyclops was the feller that wrote the cyclopedia."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

"He doesn't like my cooking," sobbed the three-months bride a tear on her long lashes. "I just know he doesn't. So there!"

"What makes you think so?" her mother asked. "Has he said he doesn't like your cooking?"

"No-no-o," stammered the bride.

"Nonsense, child, it's just your imagination. I felt there was no basis—"

"There is a basis," the bride insisted tearfully. "I had been cooking the loveliest things for him for about two weeks and then he told me he had decided to become a raw food faddist. Bo-hoo-o-oo!"—Judge.

PARISIANS GO TO FORESTS

Great Numbers of Seaside Resorts Have Been Taken Over by the Military Authorities.

In consequence of the requisition of many seaside hotels for hospitals in connection with other military expedients a great many Parisians who generally go to the seashore have taken villas in the forest regions around Paris. Accommodations are now at a premium in the favorite resorts of the forests of St. Germain and Fontainebleau. Chantilly is too near the scene of operations, but Enghien is crowded, as well as Montmorency, St. Cloud and the popular places of the Meudon Woods. Nearly all the less fashionable suburbs of Paris have benefited.

The latest military regulations allow no new residence permits within ten miles of the coast from Le Treport, near Dieppe, to the northern frontier, excepting by authorization of the military authorities; this exception is reserved to French citizens or subjects of countries allied with France who own property they propose to inhabit, or whose lease of it antedated August 2, 1914. Exceptional considerations of health may be taken by the military authorities as justification for residence in the region of Berck Plage, between Le Treport and Etables. All habitations north of Le Treport known to have belonged in time of peace to the subjects of countries now enemies of France cannot be inhabited under any circumstances.

These regulations close many resorts on the channel coast to the summer visitor.

Avowed Idea Is to Develop American Style in Dress and Home Furnishings.

Young women well known in society have entered art schools this autumn for the purpose of studying interior decoration and costume designing, says the New York Times.

Some of them are to use their knowledge in the adornment of their own homes or in giving individuality to their own wardrobe, while others intend to embark on professional careers. Their attention has been drawn to this new phase of activity largely through the European war, for they see before them opportunities of developing American tastes and American ideals in both fashions and in the furnishing of their homes.

Frank Alvah Parsons, the director of the New York School of Fine and Applied Art, said recently that in every direction this fall women of well-known New York families were showing their interest in practical work along artistic lines to a degree which he had never known. This was, in his opinion, due to the many changes which were developing from the European conflict and the wish to find a substitute for merely social activities.

Other schools where the practical arts of decoration are taught are also receiving students of social prominence from foreign countries as well. This is due to the fact that the opportunities for study in Paris and other European art centers have been cut off by the conditions which now prevail on the continent.

Canada's Giant Trees.

The 225-foot long "spar" of Douglas fir, a gift from British Columbia, which is to be erected as a flagstaff in Kew Gardens, in England, is typical of hundreds of similar pieces of timber which grow in the forests of western Canada. The Kew Gardens flagstaff, which was taken down owing to its insecure condition in December, 1913, and which was 160 feet in length, also came from British Columbia and carried the flag in Kew Gardens for over half a century. It was presented to the gardens by the late Mr. E. Stamp and was brought to England by a sailing ship, via Cape Horn, in 1861. When it was decided to take it down two years ago it occupied a big staff of workmen over a fortnight in rigging up the necessary derricks and gear for lowering it to the ground.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Oil Wells Sunk in Bed of Ocean.

Many persons would doubt the statement that it is possible to pump oil from the earth beneath the waters of the ocean. That this is done, however, is proved. The well towers are located on rough frame piers over the ocean and as far as a hundred feet from the surf. The oil is pumped through the waters of the sea and is carried through pipes to the land, where it is emptied into tanks. The pumps are worked by means of steam engines stationed on the piers. A few years ago there were many more of these wells, but some have been exhausted and abandoned in recent years.—Popular Science Monthly and World's Advance.

Blow for Tuberculosis.

Within ten years medical science will probably have succeeded in all but eliminating tuberculosis from vital statistics. This is the prediction of Dr. Jefferson D. Gibson, president of the American Association on Clinical Research, in an address in Philadelphia. He said that recent discoveries by which the presence of tuberculosis tendencies can be detected even before the germs appear in the sputum, together with a later and higher development of the X-ray, will in a short time remove tuberculosis from the list of ordinarily fatal diseases.

TRUE FRIENDSHIP OF YOUTH

Engages Gamekeeper in Long Chase That His Companion, Without Permit, Might Escape.

Two boys, one the possessor of a permit, were fishing on a certain estate when a gamekeeper suddenly darted from a thicket. The lad with the permit uttered a cry of fright, dropped his rod and ran off at top speed. The gamekeeper was led a swift chase. Then, worn out, the boy halted. The man seized him by the arm and said between pants:

"Have you a permit to fish on this estate?"

"Yes, to be sure,' said the boy, quietly.

"You have? Then show it to me."

The boy drew the permit from his pocket. The man examined it and frowned in perplexity and anger.

"Why did you run when you had this permit?" he asked.

"To let the other boy get away," was the reply. "He didn't have none!" — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Obliging.

The hotel keeper, hearing of the whereabouts of a guest who had decamped from the hotel without going through the formality of paying his bill, sent him a note:

"Mr. ——. Dear Sir: Would you send the amount of your bill and oblige?" etc.

To which the delinquent replied:

"The amount is $13. Yours respectfully."

The Relationship.

Mrs. Swiftly and her former husband were still friends. Noting the similarity of names and their familiar manner toward each other, a lady who was a guest with them at a week-end party thought they must be cousins.

"Is Mr. Swiftly a connection of yours?" she asked.

"No," laughed Mrs. Swiftly. "A disconnection."—Judge.

Distribution.

"The question of distribution is one of the most serious of our time,' remarked the ponderous man.

"It is," replied Miss Cayenne. "There is no telling what may happen to the simplest statement of innocent fact after it has been passed around by gossips."

ON THE BORDER.

The Mexican—Why are you here?

The American Soldier—We're here because we're here!

Preliminary Discussion.

"I offered her my hand," said the young man.

"Did she accept it?"

"Not exactly. She's a bridge player and what she expects of me as a partner is to lay my hand on the table and be a dummy."

Early Indication.

"Doesn't that youngster of yours toe-in a little when he tries to stand up?"

"Yes," replied the fond father. "We have great hopes of him. It looks to me as if he were naturally built for an expert golf player."

Presumption

"Those new neighbors have very presumptuous children," said he.

"Yes," replied she. "They think they have a perfect right to get out in the street and make as much noise as ours do."

The Resemblance.

"There is a great likeness between a glad telegram and a Japanese suicide."

"What might it be?"

"The telegram is also a happy dispatch."

HOW SUCCESS MAY BE WON

Suggestive Article That May Appeal to Those Who at Present Occupy Subordinate Positions.

In the Woman's Home Companion appears a practically suggestive article entitled "The Girl Who Note-book and Pencil" by Anna Steese Richardson. In her article Mrs. Richardson shows how a stenographer can, by thinking and acting for her employer advance herself in her business career. Following is an extract from the article:

"I have known stenographers who [illegible] were beneath their dignity to see to the dusting of their employer's desk, who felt that they did not need to pay any attention to his supplies of pins, rubber bands and letter clips, who did not notice whether his pencils were sharp or not, or whether his ink wells were filled. It should be a part of every secretary's work to see that these things are attended to, that ink wells, paste pots, pens, pencils, blotters—in fact, every bit of the desk equipment—are in order for use, and that the desk and all its fittings are absolutely dustless.

Two opportunities are open to the stenographer. One is a private secretaryship. The other is an independent business venture. Both are reached by the same methods—accuracy, efficiency and undivided interest. A good memory helps, but interest and that great gift of thinking for and with your employer counts the most. Lastly and just as important as anything else, remember to keep absolute silence, both in the office and out of it, on all subjects relating to your employer's business."

HEARTY EATERS ARE THESE

Commissariat Department of the British Army Will Have to Move to Keep Up With Them.

From close observation of the habits of the young Maori men in training in Auckland (New Zealand) for active service, it appears that the modern Maori has inherited, almost unimpaired, the genius for practical foraging which was one of the vital qualifications of his forefathers in the strenuous struggle for existence. They have scoured the country in the neighborhood of the camp and won eels by the score from places where the white man never dreamed there was any edible wealth at all.

The ability of the sturdy Maori recruits to assimilate comestibles is a constant source of wonder to his pale brethren.

The camp rations are admittedly generous and sufficient in their way, but the canteen is a pleasure resort, and is patronized as such. Supper is an institution, not a meal. Here is one warrior's effort at 8:30 p. m.: Two bottles of raspberry, a tin of sardines and a big lobster. This is a typical instance, and yet everyone is up, merry and bright, for physical drill at half past six in the morning.

Up to the Scratch.

One of the attractions at the Iowa state fair last year was Beachey, the aviator, sometimes advertised as the "human bird." As he was preparing for one of his flights, a large colored woman in a stiffly starched white dress stood outside the race-track fence, about forty yards behind the aeroplane. When the propellers started, they created a small whirlwind, and sent back a cloud of dust and pebbles that blinded and pelted the nearest spectators.

After the flight, the colored woman stood looking at her soiled dress, with an expression of regret oddly tinged with pride that she had been the recipient of such distinguished attention.

"What you t'ink of dat bird man, Sister Jones?" inquired an acquaintance, who had just edged her way through the crowd.

Sister Jones looked up and smiled broadly.

"Say, woman, dat Beachey am sure some bird! Why, dat man scratched up more dust dan forty chickens in an ash pile!"—Youth's Companion

Band Carried in Motorcycle Parade.

A brass band of 25 pieces recently participated in a night motorcycle parade held at Milwaukee. The bandsmen were seated in side cars, one to each car. The leader directed by waving a baton to the end of which was attached a small incandescent lamp.

The problem of illuminating the music held on the instruments of the various players was solved in a simple manner. A small-globed electric lamp, mounted in a reflector and connected with a storage battery carried under the seat, was provided in each side car.

The lights were pinned to the caps, or coats, worn by the members of the band, while the wires connecting with them extended over the men's shoulders, so that they were entirely out of the way and did not interfere with the playing.

Variation of Brightness.

In the bulletin of the Astronomical society of Barcelona, Senor Vincente Ventosa y Martinez de Velasco has just published a somewhat belated account of an observation of an unpredicted occultation of the brighter component of Beta Scorpi, which he secured on February 27, 1916. The variation in the brightness of the stars as it left the limb of the planet leads Senor Ventosa to estimate the height of the Jovian atmosphere at 1,500 to 1,800 miles.

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

The Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, contains an article on "The Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis, Based on the Assumption That the Dietetic Cause of the Disease is Lime Starvation," by Dr. John F. Russell, who says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation. * * * Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance * * * but if the salts are not in organic combination it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food."

Years of widespread use confirm us in the belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and chronic throat and bronchial troubles is due in large measure to its content of lime, so combined with other ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this has had much to do with the results obtained in many cases of these affections, which appear to have yielded to Eckman's Alterative.

As it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Your druggist will order it for you or you can send direct.

Show Respect for Bee.

Attention is called to the fact that no one ever seems to think of a bee as a bug. Insect is about the worst thing they are ever called.

Germans Lead in Wireless.

There are about ten wireless stations in France, the most powerful being that of the Eiffel tower. The Germans have many more, and especially the great station of Nauen, with a constant transmitting power of 6,000 miles, occasionally raised to 7,200 miles. They have a similar post in Spain, and another at Sayville, L. I., opposite New York. The three pylons of the latter, each nearly 500 feet high, with the antennae and all the apparatus, were manufactured in Germany, and sent from Rotterdam to Hoboken by a Holland-Amerika steamer. When the cables connecting America with Germany were cut she had already prepared a perfect substitute, or nearly so.

Chance to Think.

"Miss Gadders talks so much and so fast that it is impossible to get in a word."

"Yes, but I find her conversation a great help to me at times," said Professor Diggers, who is compelled to leave his study occasionally to fulfill his social obligations.

"Impossible!"

"Nevertheless it is quite true. When she talks I'm able to concentrate my mind on matters that demand my undivided attention, whereas if I were in the society of a less voluble person I might, now and then, have to make some sort of reply."

Tourists in France.

One of the curious aspects of the war in France is the effort of the railways to encourage the customary tourist travel. The tourists, of course, are confining themselves to travel in the large part of France that is outside of the war zone, where the fear of the dangers of war may be "ungrounded."

Cold Compress.

When you need a cold cloth and haven't ice try wringing a cloth out of cold water and shaking briskly in the air. The rapid evaporation will give you almost an ice cold compress.

FRANCE FIRST WITH MOTORS

Used Automobiles in the Field on the Day That the Great War Started.

To the French belongs the credit for the first use of motor transport in the present war, according to the Fremdenblatt, which says that at the very outbreak of hostilities the French general staff seized 500 Paris motor buses and sent them off, packed with soldiers, to the Belgian frontier, and 1,000 other motor transports similarly improvised followed next day.

As "an approximate estimate" it is stated that "the belligerent powers in the first week of the war made use of some 250,000 motor transport wagons, apart from the great numbers of automobiles de luxe and touring cars that were pressed into service." Of this 250,000 motor wagons France had 90,000, Germany 70,000, England 55,000, Austria 25,000 and Russia 10,000. Their total value is estimated at $200,000,000.

Boy First to Kill Bear.

Dorset Ringler, seventeen, of Trout Run is the first Lycoming (Pa.) county hunter this season with a bear to his credit. Ringler and Floyd Bowen, another Trout Run lad, were returning from an unsuccessful coon hunt at one o'clock the other morning when they heard something crashing through the brush, and a moment later a large black bear passed 20 feet in front of them and started to climb an oak tree.

Bowen was the first to fire and missed. At the report of the gun the bear started down the tree, and as it touched the ground Ringler sent a bullet into its heart, killing it instantly. Returning to the village of Trout Run, five miles distant, the boys awakened their fathers, who accompanied them to the scene and helped get the carcass home. The bear weighed 225 pounds.

Daily Health Hint.

Things to Worry About.

All of the glaciers in Switzerland are shrinking.

Our Daily Special.

Some kings and all women are born to rule.

Luke McLuke Says:

A lot of the people who talk to the Lord every day consider themselves too good to talk to their next door neighbors.

It takes a woman who has four closets filled with clothes to keep on indignating because she has nothing to wear.

After a woman has been married long enough she discovers that the later a man has to stay downtown and "work at the office" the less money he has on pay day.

One man sits around and talks about what he is going to do while the other man goes ahead and does it. Then the first man will begin knocking the second man because the latter is so prosperous.

A city man sees so much silk and plush and velvet that it would be good for sore eyes to get a look at a rosy cheeked country girl wearing a calico dress.

Once upon a time a man got a change of heart and he decided that he would never again lie to his wife, and that he would tell her the truth about everything. He got home at 6 p. m. and at 6:15 p. m. the ambulance was hauling him to the morgue.

The old fashioned man who used to come home loaded down with groceries and bundles now has a son who is too high toned to carry a bundle, but who brings home a package almost every night.

Another reason for the high cost of living is because every woman wants to be dressed better than other women.

It is strange how fond of bathing a boy is in summer and how much he detests bathing in winter.

A woman is as certain that her brand is the best brand of baking powder as a man is that his brand is the best brand of booze.

When a woman is around thirty and still unmarried she does an awful lot of talking about "us girls."

RUINED BY THE WAR

Famous Russian Watering Place Is Deserted.

Jalta, Known All Over the World for Its Marvelous Climate, Has Had Practically No Visitors This Season.

"Jalta, the Newport of Russia, to which even such favored regions of the world as the garden lands of California and the Riviera must yield when climates are compared, is today a stronghold of society utterly eclipsed by war, a lonely, unvisited little village whose prestige and fame have departed overnight, a Newport untenanted, forgotten by the press and by all the people who, in peace times, eagerly read about all the social splendors there," begins a statement given out by the National Geographic society.

"Jalta, normally, would just be entering upon the height of its season, its gayest, most important two months of the year, had not a world war closed it, together with Monte Carlo, Karlsbad, Interlaken and scores of other places of 'good-tone,' beauty and amusement. The imperial court, the statesmen, diplomats and members of the great Russian command, now carrying the intolerable burdens of the war, would be gathered there in times of quiet, and social Russia would follow their course.

"Jalta is a beautiful place built on the shelf of a mountain whose foot bathes in the bluest and mildest of waters to be found all around the coast of the Black sea. This little seaport, in the government of Taurida, on the southern coast of Crimea, thoroughly deserves the distinction of being the vacation home of celebrities.

"Behind it and between it and the north the solid mountain greens, which merge into deeper and deeper shades until at the bare summits they are greenish brown, rise to heights of from 2,500 to 3,000 feet. These are the southern fringe of the Jalla mountains. The tops of these peaks are often covered in icy mists while in Jalta and on its bay rests the mildest of spring weather. Snow never falls in Jalta, which boasts an annual mean temperature of 56 degreees Fahrenheit. Its climate is said to be superior to that of Nice. Its summers are not so oppressively hot, there is less rain in autumn and winter, the cool is less crisp in winter and the sunshine of autumn is said to fall balmier than anywhere else in the world.

"There is no industry and little trade carried on by the people of the village, who live almost entirely by catering to vacationists and regular visitors. It has a population of 14,000. It is an ancient city and is thought to have been a place of great importance in a remote past. At one time it belonged to the patriarchs of Constantinople."

World's Pencil Production.

According to a recent article by Mr. H. S. Sackett of the forest service, the world's production of lead pencils probably amounts to 2,000,000,000 a year, half of which are made from American-grown cedar. The United States makes about 750,000,000 a year, or more than eight pencils for each of its inhabitants.

Owing to the growing scarcity of red cedar and the fact that many other trees now little used appear to be more or less valuable substitutes for that wood in pencilmaking, the forest service has carried out a series of tests which show that, next to the two species heretofore used for this purpose, the best trees for pencils are, in order of merit, Rocky Mountain red cedar, big tree (Sequoia), Port Orford cedar, redwood and alligator Juniper.

Seize Much Opium.

Acting on a tip that a large quantity of opium had been transferred from the S. S. Korea when it was in Hong Kong, the federal authorities gave the Chiyo Maru one of the most thorough searches a liner has been subjected to in San Francisco. Thirty inspectors were put to work, and went from stem to stern, from top to bottom, and found about $2,500 worth of the contraband drug. An inspector found in a chest belonging to Loo Wing a false side, which opened when one of the screws in the lock was pressed. In this false side $600 worth of opium was found. It is said that more opium is finding its way into the country than ever before.

War Wedding Rings.

English girls becoming engaged to soldiers make a special point of acquiring out-of-the-common engagement rings. These have been very successfully and artistically made from the bands of shells melted down and inset with the prospective wearer's favorite stone. On the inside is inscribed the day on which the fragment was originally picked up, and a few particulars. Shell bands are also made up into brooches and bracelets. War brides have a fancy for rather wide wedding rings, and for the moment the smaller size the popular one before last August, is in the background.—Tit-Bits.

Undernourished Children.

Statistics show that in six of the nation's largest cities from 12 to 20 per cent of the child population is noticeably underfed or ill nourished.

THOMPSON WITHDRAWS AS ESTATE EXECUTOR

Declines to Appear in Court. But Telephones What he Will Do—Made Defendant in Suits For Immense Sums.

That J. V. Thompson, former banker of Uniontown wasted and dissipated the estate of the late James M. Griffith of New Salem, Fayette county, for which Thompson was an executor, was asserted in a petition presented three weeks ago by Attorneys representing the heirs of the state to Judge J. G. Work of the Orphans' court of Fayette county, requiring Thompson to give security or be deposed as executor by the court. The estate was of $428,000 value. Attorney C. W.Rush of Fayette county was an executor with Thompson and on the stand he denied any part of the alleged dissipation of the estate.

Although Thompson had been served with a subpena to appear at the hearing Monday, he failed to do so. Attorneys Dumbauld and Smiley asked the court to issue a bench warrant for the former banker, but Attorney Rush offered to find Thompson and bring him into court. Attorney Rush found Thompson and the latter telephoned to Attorneys Dumbauld and Smiley at the courthousse that he would withdraw as executor. Attorneys Dumbauld and Smiley told the court they were satisfied to have Rush continue as executor, as the latter had in no way violated his trust. There are 11 heirs to the estate and all reside in Kansas and Iowa, being engaged in farming pursuits.

Executor Rush told the court that he left the management of the estate entirely to Thompson, as he had confidence in the ability and honesty of Thompson. Nearly $60,000 of the collateral assets of the state has been lost by the closing of the First National bank of Uniontown.

E. S. Hackney, former cashier of the closed First National, on Saturday enterd suit against Thompson to recover $160,000 on promissory notes given him by Thompson. Mrs. Caroline Hackney, wife of the former cashier; Elizabeth S. Hackney, sister and Alice Hogg, sister-in-law, on the same day entered suits against Thompson to recover $80,000 which was loaned the former coal king of Uniontown.

In the statement filed by Mrs. Hackney she alleges that some years ago Thompson gave her $400,000 worth of bonds of the Tower Hill Connellsville Coke company as security if she satisfied a mortgage for that amount she held on some coal properties to which Thompson wished to obtain a clear title. According to the statement of Mrs. Hackney, Thompson promised to redeem these bonds but never did so.

Another entry on the filing books in the court house which attracted the attention of the Uniontown lawyers was the entering of judgment on judgment notes for $103,632 against Thompson, J. R. Barnes and A. J. Cochran by Valentine Hay of Somerset County. Nearly all of the suits which have been brought against Thompson and his associates have been on promissory notes.

Dixon, commissioner of health of Pensylvania, against the county of Washington, the action brought to compel thecounty to desist from running the sewage of the County and Children's homes into Chartiers creek, decree "pro confesso" was entered Monday.
